CHARLES-TOWN: Printed by T. POWELL & Co. at the Printing-Office near the EXCHANGE.

De male Quæsitis vix pessidet tertius Hæres.

The third generation shall scarcely possess that pelf, which had been acquired by unjust means.

WERE a considerate person, seriously to contemplate the present condition of the human species, he would have abundant reason to exclaim, that people, even of the same society, were declared enemies to each other. It would be to little purpose, to enumerate the various ways, which some men take to cheat and deceive one another—and I shall but barely mention the execrable crimes of robbery and murder, which, though dreadful evils in their own nature, are yet of less magnitude, than some others that are daily practised amongst us; seeing the former generally affect individuals only, but the latter bring ruin and distress on, by far the greatest part of, the community.—The men I have in view, are those oppressors of mankind, who foretal and engross the necessaries of life, in order to retail them, at whatever exorbitant price, their own insatiable thirst for gain thinks fit to rate them at. Persons of this stamp, are surely the greatest foes to the people among whom they are permitted to exercise such iniquitous practices—For, without remorse, they plunder the wealthy, doom the industrious mechanic to poverty, and absolutely starve the lower labourers, who, out of the small pittance of their daily earnings, can never save so much money (the rent of their houses, cloathing and other necessaries being paid for) as will enable them to purchase, from those rapacious harpies, the remaining indispensably needful supplies for their families.—The consequences of permitting those monopolizers to proceed in these wicked practices, are very apparent—Amongst many others, we may soon expect to be still more burthened with poor and indigent families; the expence of maintaining whom, already costs this town near fifteen hundred pounds sterling per annum; and this amazingly high tax, must certainly encrease from year to year, as the prices of provisions are raised, at the pleasure of the forestallers. Surely, no set of men, who have any pretensions to common-sense, much less to patriotism, as a legislative body, should suffer such impositions, to be laid on a people, who commit themselves to their protection——And more especially, may we expect to be relieved, were a proper application made on the hardships we lie under, to our representatives—who, on every other occasion, and even in matters of much less consequence, have given many proofs, of the regard they had, for the interest and welfare of their constituents.

But among other hardships we suffer, if firewood is reckoned one of the necessaries of life, as without it, most of the other articles would be useless,——many of us remember, that about twenty-two years ago, a cord of it was sold for thirty-five shillings in the summer, and for forty or forty-five shillings in the winter, which the sellers then thought so very good Prices, that they reckoned themselves fortunate in obtaining contracts to supply house-keepers at forty shillings a cord the year through, even down to the year 1755.—Some one at that time, being at a loss for a living, purchased a cart or two; and as the gentlemen in the country, were willing to have their boats quickly dispatched out of town, they put their loadings of wood into this person's hands—And, as by these means, he soon engrossed the sale of this article as a factor, for two and a half per cent; in a little time he raised the price of it to four pounds for a cord in the winter, to three pounds, or three pounds ten shillings in summer—But it has lately been sold for a guinea in the winter—And no one can say, how much higher its price will be advanced*. Thus it appears, these enormous prices of firewood, were introduced amongst us, by this man, whose example has since been copied by others; so that, we are now wholly supplied with firewood by them, and at their own price. Were it to be told in another country, that this article was sold at so exorbitant a rate in Charles-Town, any one would readily conclude, that we were furnished with it, from some very distant place—But, how great would his surprize be, on arriving here, to see the land almost every where covered with trees. Assuredly, the evil here complained of, which already has become an intolerable grievance, and is still encreasing, ought to be prevented, and speedily too.

Does a boat come to town with corn, hogs, sheep, calves or other provisions, for the Charles-Town market, there are people who watch the wharves before day, to engross the whole; so that, when a house keeper comes, in hopes to buy somewhat for the subsistence of his family, he is told every thing is sold; and whatever he wants, must then be bought from the forestaller, at his own advanced price—This sort of fraud, is practiced both by white and black people; even by negroes—Nay, so industrious are those unfeeling wretches, that they way-lay the boats on their passage to town, and afterwards make it a favour to sell such articles as they thus insidiously forestal, at whatever price they are pleased to set on them. If a countryman brings calves, sheep, or any other beasts to market, whether they be alive or dead, the negro butchers immediately offer their service to dispose of the meat, as they are thought to know the market price best, being daily employed in dealings of this sort——Even the negro fishermen, have raised the value of fish, to treble the price it used to be sold at: Hence it appears, how much proper regulations are wanted in this town, even with regard to the sale of the most common article of provision.

Further, there are men who make use of another stratagem to pick our pockets, and enhance the price of provisions: I mean those, who rent houses at the north-end of King-street, which is almost the only entrance for carts and waggons coming to Charles-Town, from all parts of the country; and, consequently, they have an opportunity of stopping them, in order to purchase whatever they bring to market: Nay, so diligent are those monopolizers, that their emissaries lie in wait at the Quarter-house, by which all the country waggons and carts must pass—Here these detestable agents, engross any part or the whole lading, as best suits their views, engaging to pay half the value in cash, and the other in goods, at nine for one, on the sterling cost. The agreement indeed, has a plausible appearance; but as to the latter part of it, 'credat Judæus apella, non ego.' Be this as it may, certain it is, that the price of butter, hams, bacon, flour, and even poultry, is exorbitantly advanced on us, by this infamous practice——In short, whether it be owing to engrossing or combination (for they are equally injurious to a community); so it is, that even potatoes and milk, are sold for two or three hundred per cent. advance, on what they were vended at some years ago. As to the latter, it would astonish a stranger, were he told, that a gallon of milk costs as much money as an equal quantity of rum; and yet, this is true!

If I mistake not, there is a law of this province, which directs, that all sorts of provision brought to Charles-Town, for the use of the inhabitants, should be exposed to sale in the streets or market, till nine o'clock in the morning, when the market bells are ordered to be rung, as a signal for any one to buy whatever may then be on hand, in order to sell it again; it being supposed, that before that hour, house-keepers are all supplied—How it should happen, I know not, but so it is, that this bell has not been rung at nine o'clock, for some years past.

Whatever may be thought by those self-interested men, whose sole views are engaged in devising means for extorting on their fellow-subjects, they ought not only to be told, but made sensible, that the methods they pursue to oppress us, are wholly contradictory to the laws of God and man, and deservedly punishable in all other communities, excepting ours; where it is hoped, we shall in due time have laws, to set bounds to their inhuman and most unjustifiable exactions. For the present, I can see no other resource the inhabitants of Charles-Town have, whereby to avoid ruin, than for the people of different professions, as well as mechanics, to set a double or treble value on their labour, in order to bring things to a balance; else, they must sooner or later be reduced to poverty, by the baneful influence of oppression, if some check is not given to the machinations of so many rapacious vultures, as now prey on our vitals.

As was said before, we have still one remedy in our power, which is, to join one and all (excepting the detestable monopolizers) in an address to our representatives, that a law may be passed for incorporating Charles-Town—For the people of that place, forming, as it were, a distinct community from the other inhabitants of this province, certain regulations are necessary for their intestine government,—whilst, at the same time, they may be subjected, in other respects, to the general laws of this country. We have reason to be assured, that so reasonable a demand would be granted; nor do I see how it could in justice be refused us:—For, as particular regulations of this sort, take place in all the cities and towns of any consequence, both in Europe and America, good effects must evidently have been expected from them before they were established; and these salutary ends must certainly have been answered, else they would not have stood their ground for many ages past——And, why should Charles-Town be denied the privilege, of guarding its inhabitants, against the fraud of monopolizing and forestalling the necessaries of life? For surely, those who are guilty of such acts of oppression, may justly be deemed enemies to the society of which they are members.

In this paper it is not to be supposed, that the least reflection is intended against gentlemen in the country, who consign their produce to factors in town, to be disposed of for exportation; but, it is designed to expose the criminal behaviour of some men, who engross the provisions that are sent to Charles-Town, for the immediate consumption of the inhabitants.

Charles-Town, Nov. 4, 1772. VERIDICUS.

* I have seen a letter from a wood-cutter in the country, to his factor in town, dated in May last, informing him, that as firewood was then a drug, being only seventy-five or eighty shillings per cord, he must not expect it should be sent down last——O Tempora!

Mr. POWELL,

IN July last I gave Notice in your Gazette, that it would not ſuit me to GARBEL or SEAL INDICO for Exportation, but for the Gentlemen whoſe Names were then inſerted, at Two Dollars per Hundred Weight—which Reſoluſion I ſtill perſevere in; though I am afraid, I ſhall be under the diſagreeable Neceſſity to tell them this Crop as I did the laſt, That neither the Quality or Price would induce me to expoſe a Character which had coſt me near Forty Years Labour, attended with a great Expence, to eſtabliſh on a good Footing; for an Error in Judgment in me, is certainly a Crime—when, in another, of leſs Experience, it would only be deemed an Overſight. However, when I find Indico brought to Market in a merchantable Condition, I will ſo far act the generous Part, to encourage the Gentlemen in my Liſt to become conſiderable Purchaſers, as not to take a Copper from the Planters for inſpecting their Indico, provided any of the under-mentioned Gentlemen are the Purchaſers:—If they are not, I ſhall charge Five Pounds Currency for every Hundred Weight, after it is tarred and weighed, with a Certificate of its Quality, and the proper Allowances for Damp and Mixtures:—Neither do I intend this Favour to them till the Middle of January—for if by that Time they can ſell their Indico without my Certificate, they naturally will not apply to me. As to the Price each Quality may obtain, it is to me of little Importance.—My Buſineſs, as Inſpector-General, when called upon, is to prevent Impoſitions either by the Seller or Purchaſer.—Had ſome Shippers of Indico laſt Crop, taken the ſame Precaution, and not have truſted ſo much to their own Judgment, it would all have been ſold in England by the Letters of the 7th of September; whereas near Two-Thirds remained without Purchaſers—and when the October Packet arrives, the Purchaſers here of this Crop, will be able to judge what Price they can afford for prime Indico, and in Proportion for inferior.

MOSES LINDO,
Inſpector-General of Indico.

CHARLES-TOWN, NOVEMBER 12.

THE Number of our Repreſentatives that met on Monday laſt, the Day to which the General Aſſembly had been prorogued, not being ſufficient to proceed on Buſineſs, they adjourned themſelves to the next Day, when, having made a Houſe, His Excellency the Governor was pleaſed to open and end the Seſſion, at once, by the following Speech.

Honourable Gentlemen,
Mr. Speaker,
And Gentlemen of the Commons Houſe of Aſſembly,

AT my firſt Meeting of this General Aſſembly, I manifeſted my Deſire to benefit this Province, by ſpeaking to you in an open and candid Manner; I made every Advance to induce a good Underſtanding between us, and to prevail with you to adminiſter, as far as might be in your Power, the moſt immediate Relief to the long diſtreſſed Situation of our Public Affairs.

I fairly explained to you the Cauſes of all our Diſtreſſes, I warned you againſt the Danger of innovating upon the Conſtitution of your Country: But, to my Concern, I find, I ſpoke to ſome Men, who would not attend to the Advice I then gave; which, had it been followed, might have, ere this Time, in a Manner, wholly remedied the Political Diſorders of this Country.

Inſtead of annihilating former Innovations upon the Conſtitution, the Commons Houſe of Aſſembly have proceeded to make other Innovations. It is my ardent Wiſh that I could, with Propriety, ſuffer this General Aſſembly to exiſt for a longer Time, but the Proceedings of the Commons Houſe, make an immediate Diſſolution abſolutely neceſſary.

It is highly proper for me to obſerve to you, that the Commander in Chief of this Province has a Right, at all Times, to inſpect the Journals of the General Aſſembly: And, I am ſorry that I muſt charge the preſent Speaker of the Commons Houſe, with having acted in an unprecedented Manner: It ſeems then, that the Commons Houſe of Aſſembly having upon their Journals, a Report of a violent and unconſtitutional Nature, the Speaker took the Journals into his Poſſeſſion; and, although I wrote to him to demand them, I could not procure them until the next Day, and then only a very ſhort Space of Time before the Meeting of the Houſe. Is it in ſuch a Manner that violent Meaſures in a Commons Houſe of Aſſembly are to be concealed from a Governor, until almoſt the Moment of their being to be carried into Execution?

To check ſuch a Behaviour, as well as to furniſh the Commons with another Opportunity to read a Tax-Bill, de novo, thereby that they might have more Time to think of forming it in ſuch a Manner as, from long Experience, they might have known, could only render it capable of doing Good to the People, I did, at our laſt Meeting, prorogue you to this Day; deſigning then to ſuffer you to ſit for the Diſpatch of Buſineſs. But having peruſed the Journals of the Commons Houſe of that Day, on which the laſt Prorogation took Effect, I find, that after they had received my Commands then immediately to attend me, they did continue to ſit, to put a Queſtion, and to form Reſolves and Orders. A Behaviour which, as it is unprecedented in the Parliamentary Proceedings, ſo it is of a moſt dangerous Tendency, being a Proof of their Contempt of the King's Prerogative, which is a Part of the Law of the Land. Being at the Head of this General Aſſembly, I cannot ſuffer ſuch a Proceeding to paſs with Impunity.

I ſhall part with this Commons Houſe of Aſſembly with the leſs Reluctance, becauſe they ſeem wanting in Juſtice to their Conſtituents, whom they endeavour to delude, pretending to relieve them by a Meaſure which, from Experience, and even from the Information of their Agent, they know has not even a Chance of procuring Relief to the diſtreſſed Public: Unprofitably ſpending their Time in impugning that Exerciſe of the Prerogative, which the uninterrupted Silence of the Houſe of Commons has confeſſed to be conſtitutional: Wantonly ſhewing how little they regard the Laws of Parliament, by their innovating upon them, acting in ſuch a Manner as is unknown in Parliamentary Proceedings; from which it is my Duty, if poſſible, not to permit any Deviation, and I will be ſure not to give Encouragement for any, by acting with unſeaſonable Lenity on my Part:—I do therefore DISSOLVE this General Aſſembly; and it is accordingly diſſolved.

November 9th, 1772. Charles-Greville Montagu.

Mr. POWELL,

HIS Excellency the Governor, having been pleaſed, in the moſt public Manner, before the General Aſſembly, in his Speech at their Diſſolution, to arraign my Conduct as Speaker of the Commons Houſe, without hearing what might be ſaid in my Behalf; it becomes neceſſary for me to apply to your Paper, in order to vindicate myſelf from the Imputation of "having "acted in an unprecedented Manner," which his Excellency lays to my Charge.

I mean not to enter into a Diſcuſſion of the Point, whether "the Commander in Chief of this Province, has a Right, at all "Times, to inſpect the Journals of the General Aſſembly." —— The Governor thinking proper to ſay ſo, does by no Means aſcertain the Right, or make it indiſputable: But, however that may be, ſurely, it does not preclude the Speaker of the Houſe, from peruſing and inſpecting the Journals alſo; they are properly and neceſſarily under his Direction, to correct Errors, ſupply Omiſſions, and prevent Miſtakes: Beſides, it is abſolutely incumbent on him, to be particularly attentive to the Courſe and different Stages of the ſeveral Matters depending before the Houſe, that he might, with more Clearneſs and Regularity, in their due Order, lay them before the Houſe.—The Neceſſity therefore, of a frequent Peruſal of the Journals, is apparent to every Man of Conſideration. I had been but two Days in the Chair, at the Time the Governor refers to. It was proper for me, at my firſt Entrance into Office, to obtain all the Helps I could, towards enabling me to diſcharge my Duty: The Poſſeſſion therefore of the Journals, for one Afternoon only, ſurely, cannot be deemed ſo high an Offence, as to operate and contribute to the Diſſolution of the General Aſſembly.

That my Conduct was not either improper or unreaſonable, in taking with me the Journals, after the Houſe had adjourned, for the Remainder of the Day, for the Purpoſe above mentioned, need not, I think, to be further inſiſted upon.—That it was "unprecedented," (as charged upon me by the Governor) I abſolutely deny. During my being Speaker formerly, I frequently did it; and, I preſume every Speaker before, and ſince that Time, has done the ſame.—I do not ſee how he can qualify himſelf, for the Duty of his Station, when a Variety of Buſineſs is depending, without a very cloſe and frequent Reference to the Journals.

That the Governor "wrote to me, to demand the Journals, "and could not procure them until the next Day," a few Circumſtances explained, will exculpate me, I hope, from any Blame on this Head alſo.—When the Governor's Note was left at my Houſe, I was from Home; it was brought me by my Servant at a Friend's Houſe (where I was engaged for the Evening) private, I believe Nine o'Clock, juſt going to Supper; too late, I apprehend, for an immediate Compliance with his Excellency's Demand: I muſt have returned Home, and then carried the Journals myſelf to him, not having any other proper Means of Conveyance. The next Morning I roſe early, purpoſely ſooner than uſual; carried the Journals myſelf to the Clerk's Houſe, and deſired they might be ſent to the Governor. The Clerk was ill in Bed; and I ſuppoſe it was from that Accident, the Journals were not ſooner conveyed to his Excellency. Theſe Facts and Obſervations, properly attended to, I flatter myſelf, will ſhew the Governor's Cenſure of me was miſapplied. My Idea is, and my Sentiments are known to many Gentlemen, that if the Governor has a Right to inſpect the Journals, it is below the Dignity of the Houſe, or its ſpeaker, to uſe any Shifts or Evaſions to keep them from him; if he has no Right, his Claim ought to be diſputed upon its proper Grounds. What I did, was of my own mere Motion, I had no Authority or Sanction of the Houſe for it.

I am, your humble Servant,
RAWLINS LOWNDES.

Laſt Thurſday died, much lamented, Mrs. Sarah Perkins, aged upwards of Sixty Years, a Native of this Province, and Widow of the late Mr. Samuel Perkins.

On Saturday about 200 of Iriſh Paſſengers arrived here, in the Brigantine Betty, Captain Woodſide, from Larne, in order to ſettle in this Province.

Captain Brewer, who arrived here the ſame Day, from Jamaica, informs us, that on the 22d ult. he ſpoke with the Brigantine Ann, of and for Edenton, in North-Carolina, William Proby, Maſter, off Porto-Porca on Cuba, then out from Jamaica 43 Days, 33 of which he had been in Sight of the Coxcombs, without being able to get to the Eaſtward, on Account of a ſtrong Weſterly Current, and in Want of almoſt every Neceſſary of Life, of which Captain Brewer ſpared him all he could, though at Allowance himſelf. Captain Brewer ſaw ſeveral other Veſſels, that had been out ten Weeks from Jamaica, who could not get through the Gulph.

Yeſterday died John Miles, Eſq; late of St. Andrew's Pariſh, and formerly one of its Repreſentatives.

New Rice now ſells at 70s. per Hundred; none has yet been bought but for the Weſt-India Markets. Indian Corn is now ſelling at 20s.——But all the other Neceſſaries of Life are exorbitantly high.

An ESSAY on PITY.

And Pity on freſh Objects only ſtays,
But with the tedious Sight of Woes decays. DRYDEN.

PITY has been always conſidered as a paſſion of gentle, benevolent, and virtuous minds; although it is acknowledged to produce only ſuch a participation of the calamity of others, as upon the whole is pleaſing to ourſelves.

As a tender participation of foreign diſtreſs, it has been urged to prove, that man is endowed with ſocial affections, which, however forcible, are wholly diſintereſted; and, as a pleaſing ſenſation, it has been deemed an example of unmixed ſelfiſhneſs and malignity. It has been reſolved into the power of imagination, by which we apply the misfortunes of others to ourſelves: We have been ſaid to pity no longer than we fancy ourſelves to ſuffer, and to be pleaſed only by reflecting that our ſufferings are not real; thus indulging a dream of diſtreſs, from which we can awake, whenever we pleaſe, to exult in our ſecurity, and enjoy the compariſon of the fiction with truth.

I ſhall not perplex my reader with the ſubtilties of a debate, in which human nature has, with equal zeal and plauſibility, been exalted and degraded. It is ſufficient for my purpoſe to remark, that pity is generally underſtood to be that paſſion, which is excited by the ſufferings of perſons with whom we have no tender connection, and with whoſe welfare the ſtronger paſſions have not united our felicity: For no man can call the anguiſh of a mother, whoſe infant was torn from her breaſt, and left to be devoured in a deſert, by the name of pity; although the ſentiment of a ſtranger, who ſhould drop a ſilent tear at the relation, which yet might the next hour be forgotten, could not otherwiſe be juſtly denominated.

If pity, therefore, is abſorbed in another paſſion, when our love of thoſe that ſuffer is ſtrong; pity is rather an evidence of the weakneſs than the ſtrength of that general philantrophy, for which ſome have ſo eagerly contended, with which they have flattered the pride, and veiled the vices of mankind, and which they have affirmed to be alone ſufficient to recommend them to the favour of heaven, to atone for the indulgence of every appetite, and the neglect of every duty.

If human benevolence was abſolutely pure and ſocial, it would not be neceſſary to relate the ravages of a peſtilence or a famine with minute and diſcriminating circumſtances to rouſe our ſenſibility; we ſhould certainly deplore irremediable calamity, and participate temporary diſtreſs, without any mixture of delight: That deceitful ſorrow, in which pleaſure is ſo well known to be predominate, that invention has been buſied for ages in contriving tales of fictitious ſufferance for no other end than to excite it, would be changed into honeſt commiſeration, in which pain would be unmixed, and which, therefore, we ſhould wiſh to loſe.

Soon after the fatal battle of Fontenoy, a young gentleman, who came over with the officer that brought the expreſs, being expected at the houſe of a friend, a numerous company of gentlemen and ladies were aſſembled to hear an account of the action from an eye-witneſs.

The gentleman, as every man is flattered by commanding attention, was eaſily prevailed upon to gratify the company, as ſoon as they were ſeated, and the firſt ceremonies paſt. He deſcribed the march of many thouſands of their countrymen into a field, where batteries had been concealed on each ſide, which in a moment ſtrewed the ground with mangled limbs and carcaſſes, that almoſt floated in blood, and obſtructed the path of thoſe who followed to the ſlaughter. He related how often the decreaſing multitude returned to the mouth of the cannon; how ſuddenly they were rallied, and how ſuddenly broken; he repeated the liſt of officers, who had fallen undiſtinguiſhed in the carnage, men, whoſe eminence rendered their names univerſally known, their influence extenſive, and their attachments numerous; and he hinted the fatal effects, which this defeat might produce to this nation, by turning the ſucceſs of war againſt us. But the company, however amuſed by the relation, appeared not to be affected by the event: They were ſtill attentive to every trifling punctilio of ceremony, uſual among well-bred perſons; they bowed with a graceful ſimper to a lady who ſneezed, mutually preſented each other with ſnuff, ſhook their heads, and changed their poſture at proper intervals; aſked ſome queſtions, which tended to produce a more minute detail of ſuch circumſtances of horror as had been lightly touched; and, having at laſt remarked that the Roman patriot regretted the brave could die but once, the converſation ſoon became general, and a motion was made to divide into parties at whiſt. But, juſt as they were about to comply, the gentleman again engaged their attention. I forgot, ſaid he, to relate one particular, which, however, deſerves to be remembered. The Captain of a company, whoſe name I cannot now recollect, had, juſt before his corps was ordered to embark, married a young lady, to whom he had been long tenderly attached, and who, contrary to the advice of all her friends, and the expoſtulations, perſuaſions, and intreaty of her huſband, inſiſted to go abroad with him, and ſhare his fortune at all events. If he ſhould be wounded, ſhe ſaid, that ſhe might haſten his recovery, and alleviate his pain, by ſuch attendance as ſtrangers cannot be hired to pay; if he ſhould be taken priſoner, ſhe might, perhaps, be permitted to ſhorten the tedious hours of captivity, which ſolitude would protract; and, if he ſhould die, that it would be better for her to know it with certainty and ſpeed, than to wait at a diſtance in anxiety and ſuſpenſe, tormented by doubtful and contradictory reports, and at laſt believing it poſſible, that, if ſhe had been preſent, her aſſiduity and tenderneſs might have preſerved his life. The Captain, though he was not convinced by her reaſoning, was yet overcome by the importunate eloquence of her love; he conſented to her requeſt, and they embarked together.

The head quarters of the Duke of Cumberland were at Bruſſoel, from whence they removed the evening before the battle to Monbray, a village within muſquet-ſhot of the enemy's lines, where the Captain, who commanded the left wing, was encamped.

Their parting in the morning was ſhort. She looked after him, till he no longer could be diſtinguiſhed from others; and, as ſoon as the firing began, ſhe went back pale and trembling, and ſat down, expecting the event in an agony of impatience, anxiety, and terror. She ſoon learned from ſtragglers and fugitives, that the ſlaughter was dreadful, and the victory hopeleſs. She did not however yet deſpair; ſhe hoped that the Captain might return among the few that ſhould remain: But, ſoon after the defeat, this hope was cut off, and ſhe was informed that he fell in the firſt charge, and was left among the dead. She was reſtrained, by thoſe about her, from ruſhing in the phrenzy of deſperation to the field of battle, of which the enemy was ſtill poſſeſſed: But, the tumult of her mind having abated, and her grief become more calm during the night, ſhe ordered a ſervant to attend her at break of day; and, as leave had been given to bury the dead, ſhe went herſelf to ſeek the remains of her huſband, that ſhe might honour them with the laſt rites, and pour the tears of conjugal affection on his grave. They wandered about among the dying and the dead, gazing on every diſtorted countenance, and looking round with irreſolution and amazement on a ſcene, which thoſe who ſtripped had left ten times more a ſight of horror than thoſe who had ſlain. From this ſight ſhe was at laſt turning with confuſion and deſpair, but was ſtopped by the cries of a favourite ſpaniel, who had followed her, without being perceived. He was ſtanding at ſome diſtance in the field; and, the moment ſhe ſaw him, ſhe conceived the ſtrongeſt aſſurances, that he had found his maſter. She haſted inſtantly to the place, without regarding any other object; and, ſtooping over the corps by which he ſtood, ſhe found it ſo diſfigured with wounds, and beſmeared with blood, that the features were not to be known: But, as ſhe was weeping in the anguiſh of ſuſpenſe, ſhe diſcovered hanging on the wriſt the remains of a ruffle, round which there was a ſlight border of her own work. Thus ſuddenly to have diſcovered, and in ſuch dreadful circumſtances, that which ſhe had ſought, quite overwhelmed her, and ſhe ſunk down on the body. By the aſſiſtance of the ſervant, ſhe was recovered to ſenſibility, but not to reaſon; ſhe was ſeized at once with convulſions and madneſs; and, a few hours after he was carried back to the village, ſhe expired.

Thoſe, who had heard the fate of whole battalions without pity, and the loſs of a battle, by which their country would probably ſuffer irreparable damage, without concern; liſtened to a tale of private diſtreſs with uninterrupted attention. All regard to each other was, for a while, ſuſpended; tears by degrees overflowed every eye, and every boſom became ſuſceptible of pity: But the whole circle pauſed with evident regret, when the narrative was at an end; and would have been glad, that ſuch another could have been told, to continue their entertainment. Such was the benevolence of pity! But a lady who had taken the opportunity of a very ſlight acquaintance to ſatisfy her curioſity, was touched with much deeper diſtreſs; and, fainting in the ſtruggle to conceal the emotions of her mind, fell back in her chair; an accident which was not ſooner diſcovered, becauſe every eye had been fixed upon the ſpeaker, and all attention monopolized by the ſtory. Every one, however, was ready to afford her aſſiſtance; and it was ſoon diſcovered, that ſhe was mother to the lady, whoſe diſtreſs had afforded ſo much virtuous pleaſure to the company. It was not poſſible to tell her another ſtory, which would revive the ſame ſenſations; and, if it had, the world could not have bribed her to have heard it. Her affection to the ſufferer was too ſtrong, to permit her, on this occaſion, to enjoy the luxury of pity, and applaud her benevolence for ſenſations that ſhewed its defects. It would, indeed be happy for us, if we were to exiſt only in this ſtate of imperfection, that a greater ſhare of ſenſibility is not allowed us; but, if the mole, in the kindneſs of unerring wiſdom, is permitted ſcarce to diſtinguiſh light from darkneſs, the mole ſhould not, ſurely, be praiſed for the perſpicacity of its ſight.

Let us diſtinguiſh that malignity, which others confound with benevolence, and applaud as virtue: Let that imperfection of nature, which is adapted to an imperfect ſtate, teach us humility; and fix our dependence upon him, who hath promiſed to create in us a new heart and a right ſpirit, and to receive us to that place, where our love of others, however ardent, can only increaſe our felicity; becauſe, in that place, there will be no object, but ſuch as perfect benevolence can contemplate with delight.

Charles-Town, July 14, 1772.

THE Subſcriber is much obliged to his planting Friends, who, by landing their Crops at his Wharf for three Years paſt, have thereby introduced it to Buſineſs.—He acted as Factor during that Time, purely to prevent his Friends being Sufferers by their intended Kindneſs to him, as it was very induſtriouſly inſinuated, that Rice would not ſell at his Wharf: But as he is now well convinced, and flatters himſelf all his Friends are fully ſo too, that their Crops, landed in large or ſmall Parcels, will ſell altogether as well at his Wharf, as at any other in Charles-Town; and that any Gentlemen, principally concerned in the Factorage Way, will now have no Objection to receive and ſell Rice or Indico landed thereat: He therefore chooſes to decline that Buſineſs, finding it more than he is able to go through. He hopes his good Friends will ſtill land their Crops at his Wharf, where they may depend he ſhall take Care HIMSELF that their Boats have all poſſible Diſpatch.

As to the Safety and Convenience of his Docks and Stores, he is ſure there are none preferable to them in Town in thoſe Reſpects, and few (if any) Barns in the Country are cooler and more ſecure from Fire; and it is almoſt impoſſible for a Barrel of Rice to be ſtolen in landing or ſhipping at his Wharf. Such Gentlemen as uſe his Wharf conſtantly, may depend on never wanting Storage whenever they do not like the going Price:—No prudent Planter but muſt be convinced, that this is a Matter of the utmoſt Conſequence to him, as many, for theſe three Years paſt, have had their Crops (when landed in Town) diſpoſed of very much againſt their own Inclinations and Judgments, merely for Want of Storage; and this he is ſure has been the Caſe, particularly this Year ſeveral Times, notwithſtanding the Shortneſs of the Crop.

Meſſrs. GIBBES & HORT,

Who have had long Experience in the FACTORAGE BUSINESS in all its Branches, and confine themſelves to that only, have taken the Charge of his Scales, and will tranſact their Buſineſs on his Wharf.—To theſe Gentlemen he begs Leave to recommend ſuch of his Friends who are not otherwiſe engaged.

Chriſtopher Gadſden.

N. B. Any Gentlemen in Trade may depend on not wanting STORAGE for ſuch Parcels of Rice as they purchaſe at his Wharf.

GIBBES & HORT,

ACQUAINT THEIR FRIENDS,

THAT THEY CONTINUE THE

Factorage Buſineſs in all its Branches,

(ON THE USUAL TERMS)

AND, for the Convenience of good Storage, will tranſact it on Captain GADSDEN's WHARF; where they deſire ſuch of their Friends, as it may be agreeable to, will order the Goods they intend to favour them with, being convinced, that they will ſell as well there, as at any other Place in CHARLES-TOWN.——Conſtant Attendance will alſo be given at their other Compting-Houſe on the BAY.

Their Friends will be ſupplied with proper Boats agreeable to their Orders: And they hope to merit a Continuance of their Favours, by a ſteady Attention to their Employers Intereſt, eſpecially as they are determined to confine themſelves to the Factorage Buſineſs only.—And they aſſure their Friends, that they are not in any Wiſe intereſted in Captain GADSDEN's Stores; ſo that whenever they ſhall think it neceſſary to ſtore for a better Market, it muſt be SOLELY with a View to their Friends Intereſt.

N. B. WANTED, to attend on the ſaid Wharf, a Perſon well qualified and recommended.
